Welcome!

Dear Customer,

As we started to consider our highlights from April's new recordings, it quickly became apparent that there was quite a heavy leaning, albeit unintentional, towards piano music. Having said 'unintentional', maybe it's not a coincidence that the boss also happens to be rather a fan of the keyboard...

Boris Giltburg, who must be one of Naxos's most lucrative soloists, presents us with the next disc in his cycle of works by Rachmaninov: this time it is the turn of the delightful and emotionally powerful Preludes. We have two from BIS: Nottingham-born pianist Clare Hammond explores the keyboard works of Josef Myslivecek (1737-1781), and Yevgeny Sudbin offers us his interpretations of late Beethoven. The Piano Concerto by Clara Schumann is the headline work on Volume 78 of Hyperion's 'Romantic Piano Concerto' series, beautifully performed as always by Howard Shelley. Twin sisters Cristina and Michelle Naughton play some fascinating works for two pianos by American composers (Warner Classics), plus we have Schubert recitals from both Andras Schiff (fortepiano, ECM) and Khatia Buniatishvili (Sony). Plenty for pianophiles to get their teeth into!

Opera comes a close second in the genre-stakes - we have three unusual, yet very interesting works to point out to you this month. Donizetti's L'Ange di Nisida (later heavily reworked as La Favorite) is Opera Rara's latest deluxe production; NIFC offer us a very similar style of presentation in the Italian version of Moniuszko's Halka (viewed by some as "Poland's national opera"); and Bru Zane (formerly Ediciones Singulares) release Spontini's lesser-known Olimpie in their usual lavish CD-Book format.

There are many more we could point out to you, but space is becoming tight, so just a quick mention of two new Elgar recordings: Caractacus from the Huddersfield Choral Society/Martyn Brabbins (Hyperion), and the Enigma Variations from the Royal Liverpool Philharmonic/Vasily Petrenko both look to be worthy additions to the composer's vast discography. New special offers this month include the complete and generous catalogues of Alpha, MDG and Somm; superb selections from both Warner Classics and Chandos; titles from small, yet high-quality labels Rubicon and Bru Zane; and DVDs/Blu-rays from Accentus, including great performances of Beethoven, Bruckner and Mahler from the likes of Barenboim, Chailly and Abbado.

Best regards from,

The Europadisc Team

DISC OF THE MONTH

Reason in Madness

Recital of songs by Brahms, Chausson, Debussy, Duparc, Koechlin, Poulenc, Saint-Saens, Schubert, Schumann, R Strauss and Wolf
Carolyn Sampson, Joseph Middleton

BIS BIS2353

Throughout history men have feared madwomen, burning them as witches, confining them in asylums and subjecting them to psychoanalysis – yet, they have also been fascinated, unable to resist fantasizing about them. For their new disc, Carolyn Sampson and Joseph Middleton have created a programme that explores the responses of a variety of composers to women whose stories have left them vulnerable and exposed.

As a motto they have chosen an aphorism by Nietzsche: 'There is always some madness in love, but there is also always some reason in madness'.

Brahms's Ophelia Songs, composed for a stage production of Hamlet, appear next to those by Richard Strauss and Chausson, while Ophelia's death is described by both Schumann (in Herzeleid) and Saint-Saëns. Goethe's mysterious and traumatized Mignon appears in settings by Hugo Wolf as well as Duparc, while his ill-used Gretchen grieves by her spinning-wheel in Schubert's matchless setting. Sadness and madness tip into witchery and unbridled eroticism with Pierre Louÿs's poems about Bilitis, set by Koechlin and Debussy. Sampson and Middleton end their recital as it began, with a suicide by drowning: in Poulenc's monologue La Dame de Monte-Carlo, the elderly female protagonist has been unlucky at the gambling tables and decides to throw herself into the sea.

The Albert Roussel Edition

£28.95 Erato 9029 548916 (11CD)

Much of the richly diverse oeuvre of Albert Roussel (1869-1937) grew from his far-flung travels as a young navy officer. One of the major French composers of his time, he produced music that embraces the exotic colours of so-called Impressionism, the rigour of his training at Vincent d'Indy's Schola Cantorum, and the questing spirit of Modernism. Containing a number of CD premieres, this wide-ranging edition features such performers as André Cluytens, Michel Plasson and José van Dam. In a recording from 1929, Roussel himself conducts excerpts from Le Festin de l'araignée (the set also includes recordings of him playing the piano and speaking), while his sometime pupil Jean Martinon conducts the entire ballet score in a recording from 1971. Conductor Charles Munch and mezzo-soprano Claire Croiza, who both appear in the edition, were also closely associated with the composer. A number of recordings in the edition are appearing on CD globally for the first time. The analogue recordings in the edition have been digitally remastered in 24bit/96kHz from the original tapes.

Opera Rara

L'Ange de Nisida was due to be among Donizetti's first operas to be premièred in Paris after the composer's move to the French capital in 1838. The project had to be abandoned, though, when the commissioning theatre, the Théâtre de la Renaissance, went bankrupt. Although Donizetti would later use portions of its score in La Favorite and in Don Pasquale, L'Ange de Nisida was long deemed too fragmentary to be capable of reconstruction. However, opinions were changed in 2009 thanks to extensive research in the Paris archives by the Italian scholar Candida Mantica and, over the last 10 years, the 800-page score has been restored. As Roger Parker, Repertoire Consultant to Opera Rara, explains, "L'Ange de Nisida will make people think about Donizetti's late style in a different way. It will rewrite how we think about him as a composer, in particular about the breadth of his musical inspiration."

Sir John Eliot Gardiner's personal curation of Easter choral music inspired by his family's annual Easter Play at his home in Springhead, Dorset. A companion to the Monteverdi Choir's 1998 recording Once as I remember, which told the story of the Springhead Christmas Play. Structured around a series of tableaux, narrating through a combination of the different Gospel accounts, it is a dramatic retelling of the Resurrection story, employing disparate musical styles and frequent shifts of focus and perspective, all held together by the creative vision of a Dorset mother and her son. Includes works by Britten, Byrd, Cornyshe, d'Este, Gabrieli, Gesualdo, Gippenbusch, L'Heretier, Morley, Rheinberger, Scheidt, Schutz, Tallis, Taverner, Tisserand and Wipo of Burgundy.

In the latest chapter in Sir Andrés Schiff's ongoing documentation of Franz Schubert's music, the great pianist plays the Four Impromptus, D899, and compositions from 1828, the last year of Schubert's too-brief life: the Three Pieces, D946 ("impromptus in all but name" notes Misha Donat in the CD booklet), the C minor Sonata, D958, and the A major Sonata, D959. Schiff again chooses to use his fortepiano made by Franz Brodmann in Vienna, around 1820. "It is to me ideally suited to Schubert's keyboard works," he has said. "There is something quintessentially Viennese in its timbre, its tender mellowness, its melancholic cantabilità." Critics have agreed, unanimous also in their praise of Schiff's interpretations: "I cannot think of anyone of his calibre who has mastered the fortepiano as well as the modern piano and shown such distinction on both," wrote Stephen Plaistow in Gramophone. "In Schubert Schiff has a claim to be considered sovereign among today's players, carrying forward the reading and interpretation of him into areas that others have not fully explored."

The third Elgar album from Vasily Petrenko and the RLPO, a critically acclaimed team of Elgarians, brings together three masterpieces: In the South, a vibrant and colourful depiction of the Southern Italian coast, the Serenade for String Orchestra, and the Variations on an original theme, known as the Enigma Variations. Elgar's breakthrough masterpiece was conceived in 1898 during a moment of dispirited idleness. He had come home exhausted from a day of violin teaching and was absent-mindedly extemporising at the piano when his wife, Alice, called out: 'Edward, that's a good tune.' What Elgar's fingers had stumbled upon were in fact hints or fragments of a melody, each starting after the first beat of the bar – ideal for variation treatment. Now contemplating that theme, Elgar began to imagine how certain friends of his might play it or make it their own

According to Berlioz, Spontini was – after Gluck – the greatest genius of French music to pave the way for the Romantic era. And it may well be that the little-known Olympie, premiered in 1819 and subsequently revived in 1826 under the modified title Olimpie, had a greater influence than we have hitherto imagined on the massive upheaval that was to set French opera on the path of the modern 'grand opéra'. From start to finish, this finely polished score, with its astonishing orchestration, is full of spectacular effects that clearly look forward to Les Troyens of Berlioz. The omnipresence of a huge chorus, the valiant vocal writing for Antigonus, the pathos of the role of Statira (conceived for Caroline Branchu, then at the peak of her career): all the ingredients were there to make a powerful impact on listeners such as Berlioz, who was moved to tears. Here, undoubtedly, is one of the first epic canvases of the nineteenth century.

Bru Zane all titles now reduced

Bru Zane (formerly Ediciones Singulares) is a publishing imprint specializing in the production of stylish book-CDs which set music securely into its historical, cultural and social background and discourse. They are beautifully presented in hardback format and feature a very high calibre of performers such as Karina Gauvin, Veronique Gens, Karine Seshayes, Herve Niquet, Paul McCreesh and Christophe Rousset. The lesser-known compositions of French Romanticism is their primary focus and we cannot recommend them highly enough!
